David Bacon Election Night Party

Plaza Café Southside 7PM-???
Featuring Joe West and the Santa Fe All Stars

David Bacon invites the public to celebrate his campaign, Election Night after the polls close at the Plaza Café Southside, 3011 Cerrillos Road next to the Quality Inn. Performing will be Joe West and the Santa Fe All Stars, one of Santa Fe's most entertaining bands.

"This campaign has been a great success, thanks to the wonderful support and effort of hundreds of people. I am sincerely grateful," says David Bacon.

"Win or lose, November 7, and I think we have a good chance, this campaign has been a huge success," according to press secretary Rick Lass. "A Green party candidate in New Mexico has never received the endorsements of so many organizations- as far as we can tell, every organization that endorsed in this race chose David- from media like the Farmington Daily Times and Albuquerque Journal to constituencies like AFSCME and the Sierra Club."

David Bacon adds, "I am especially pleased to have run in the first ever publicly funded campaign in New Mexico, effectively taking the influence of corporate money out of politics. If elected, I will owe my seat on the PRC to the public, and that is who I intend to serve."

Of particular note in this election is the complete lack of mudslinging. This has been a good old fashioned campaign featuring grassroots organizing, and, due to public funding, a race to the best ideas, not the biggest donors.

See you at the Southside!
